The Hippocratic Oath

I swear to fulfill, to the best of my ability and judgment, this covenant:

I will respect the hard-won scientific gains of those physicians in whose steps I walk, and gladly share such knowledge as is mine with those who are to follow.

I will apply, for the benefit of the sick, all measures which are required, avoiding those twin traps of overtreatment and therapeutic nihilism.

I will remember that there is art to medicine as well as science, and that warmth, sympathy, and understanding may outweigh the surgeon's knife or the chemist's drug.

I will not be ashamed to say "I know not," nor will I fail to call in my colleagues when the skills of another are needed for a patient's recovery.

I will respect the privacy of my patients, for their problems are not disclosed to me that the world may know. Most especially must I tread with care in matters of life and death. If it is given me to save a life, all thanks. But it may also be within my power to take a life; this awesome responsibility must be faced with great humbleness and awareness of my own frailty. Above all, I must not play at God.

I will remember that I do not treat a fever chart, a cancerous growth, but a sick human being, whose illness may affect the person's family and economic stability. My responsibility includes these related problems, if I am to care adequately for the sick.

I will prevent disease whenever I can, for prevention is preferable to cure.

I will remember that I remain a member of society, with special obligations to all my fellow human beings, those sound of mind and body as well as the infirm.

If I do not violate this oath, may I enjoy life and art, respected while I live and remembered with affection thereafter. May I always act so as to preserve the finest traditions of my calling and may I long experience the joy of healing those who seek my help.

We also treat the human spirit...

Caduceus 2008

Dear Class of 2008,

You and your families should be very proud of the accomplishment that you have made this year in graduating from the Stritch School of Medicine (SSOM). You now are about to embark on an exciting phase of your career in medicine. The time you spend in your residency will be just as fulfilling as your time here at Stritch. In fact, you are about to meet and work with individuals who will be your lifelong colleagues in your field both professionally as well as personally. Residency is also a time when you will acquire not only more detailed knowledge and practical skills in a specific area but because of your new responsibilities you will really discover the "art of medicine" as well. That is, even with all the technology and molecular advancements in whatever field you will be practicing, things are not always black and white with regard to patient care.

Your time here at SSOM has prepared you well for this next step. You all have the knowledge and the skills to excel in your residency and beyond because of the excellent faculty and staff that we have here at Loyola. Although the field of medicine is currently changing with all of the regulatory and financial issues facing us, please remember what the practice of medicine is all about—a relationship between you and your patient.

Recently, there have been at least two major technological advances that have directly affected your ability to interact personally with your patients. First, the continued national roll-out of the individualized electronic medical record; and second, the Internet has now given patients more readily available information to bring back to the physician/patient encounter. Both of these have and will continue to profoundly change your relationship with patients. For example, because Loyola and other institutions are beginning to use electronic medical records—the doctor may now sit at a computer and type while listening rather than jotting down notes to be transcribed later. Although the use of EMR is important for the ready access of consistent information for better patient care in the long run, this physical dynamic can change the doctor/patient relationship. This will have to be vigilantly addressed by all of us. Also, a patient may come to you with information from the Internet that describes a novel treatment of colon cancer, for example, and now your job is to understand the literature in this area in order to best analyze and treat. This takes life long learning skills.

Even with all the technological advances in the 21st century, medicine should actually be more "personalized" and you have to be the guardian of this principle. This is the era where the boundaries between the art and the science of medicine will begin to blur and become more indistinguishable. However, your litmus test when embracing any new medical technological advance should always be what is in the best interest of the individual patient in front of you. Therefore, you must constantly be aware of and make the right adjustments to maintain this special relationship. This is the key element of the medical profession and is found in the Hippocratic Oath conceived centuries ago which you will be taking at graduation. Always remember that your patient could be a mother just like yours, a brother just like yours, a friend just like yours. This principle holds true whether you become a researcher at the bench where future patients may benefit from your discoveries or a health care administrator where decisions are made about what the best care is for all patients or a pediatrician in the community. When times are stressful and the answers are not readily apparent, just examine whatever the issue is and ask yourself what is in the best interest of your patient and the answers will become more apparent.

Good luck to all of you and please stay in contact as much as possible. Remember, you are the legacy of as well as the future ambassadors for the school for which we are extremely proud. I know that we can expect great accomplishments and I look forward to following all of your careers - some of which may end up back here at the SSOM.

John M. Lee MD PhD
Dean, Stritch School of Medicine

History of Stritch

In 1870, Reverend Arnold Damen founded Saint Ignace College, a liberal arts college on the west side of Chicago. Shortly thereafter, the school was renamed Loyola University Chicago and was relocated to what is now its Lakeshore Campus.

At that time, Chicago boasted several independent medical colleges. In 1909, Loyola became associated with the Illinois Medical College, and Bennell and Reliance Medical Colleges joined the affiliation in 1910. In 1915 all the schools became Loyola University School of Medicine.

In 1917 the Chicago College of Medicine and Surgery was purchased to become the first home of the School of Medicine. The building was located on South Wolcott, just adjacent to Cook County Hospital. On February 20, 1920 the medical school earned accreditation from the Council on Medical Education and Hospitals of the American Medical Association.

It wasn't until the 1940's that Loyola was able to flourish financially, when Samuel Cardinal Stritch, Archbishop of Chicago, lent his name to an annual fundraising dinner for the school. This became a major source of financial support for Loyola for many years. On April 15, 1948, the Board of Trustees approved a motion for the school to be renamed as the Stritch School of Medicine.

As the school grew, a larger facility was desperately needed and plans for the construction of a new school and teaching hospital began in 1965. The buildings were to be constructed on a 60-acre parcel of land in Maywood, IL, next to the Kines Veterans Association Hospital campus. The new medical school opened its doors on January 1, 1969 and the 504-bed Foster McGraw teaching hospital, named after a generous benefactor, began admitting patients on May 21, 1969.

In 1981, the Mulcahy Outpatient Center was constructed to allow for Loyola's expanding need for space. This building now serves as a location for many administrative offices.

In 1986, the 9-story Russo Surgical Pavilion was added to the complex. In the same year, Loyola was designated a Level 1 Trauma center. This was supplemented by the addition of the Lifesaver Helicopter Emergency Medical System and the completion of the Emergency Care Facility in 1991.

In 1994, a cancer center was built to better serve that particular patient population. The center was named for Cardinal Bernardin in 1996 after he received care in the facility.

Again the school outgrew its accommodations and in July 1997 the current Stritch School of Medicine opened its doors to the class of 2001. The building was graced with the names of its generous contributors, John and Kerla Cuneo. The Center for Health and Fitness was also added to Loyola's campus at this time.

In 2003 the Loyola Outpatient Center at the south end of campus was completed. This building houses an ambulatory surgery facility, an MRI machine and room for all of the specialty clinics.

On December 15, 2005 administrators broke ground for the 103 million dollar expansion and renovation of the Loyola Hospital complex. In all, the construction will add 176,000 square feet of new space and renovate 60,000 square feet of the existing hospital. When completed in 2008, the new hospital will include the Center for Heart and Vascular Medicine, an inpatient MRI machine, a total of 27 operating rooms, and 64 new private rooms for a total of 298 adult medical/surgical beds.

How in the world did a whole cucumber end up in the colon??

The dirtier the pneumatic, the better!!

Was this diagram named after white boys wearing baggy jeans and chains??

Gotta make some cutssssss...

Boron and Boulpaep--was that the title of that book that sat on my shelf all year??

Pilfered anatomy gloves

How'd we get two empty skulls?

Stinky Netter to be left in lab

"Time to wake up Dr. D... remember, we cut first, we ask questions later"

IN THE BEGINNING...

White Coat Ceremony

At the White Coat Ceremony, you were symbolically inducted into the medical profession. I promised that I would drag you kicking and screaming across the stage at graduation if need be. Then I left.....good luck with that.

Eddie's winning social chair campaign poster!

Mmm, cans!!

Look, I made it to a post-test party.... and I'm standing!!

And Scotland takes home the "gold medals"

As medical school draws to an end, I would like to thank my mom and dad, for supporting me, encouraging me, and for being wonderful, loving parents.

Thank you to Melissa, Michael, and Kevin, for making me laugh more than anyone I know. You are the best siblings ever, and I am so lucky to be able to share a lifetime with the three of you.

KJ, I will always remember all the laughs at 428 Marengo and the many nights out on Madison Street. Thanks for sharing a roof with me, and for sharing your Tivo!

To Sean, thank you for being the loyal, loving person that you are, for always being there with me to celebrate each medical school milestone and to cheer me up through the rough patches.

To Grandma Bartz, thank you for your nightly prayers that I might become a good doctor...I hope I never let you down!

The things I will remember most about medical school:

- Table 12...my anatomy group: Amelia ("no limb"), Adam ("A. Hill"), Chris ("Hughes"), and Anneliese ("Squeezy"). They were some of my first friends here, and I've never lived down the nickname "Jota."
- My trip to Ireland. That's when I realized how cool Tia was, and we've been best friends ever since.
- My Psychiatry rotation with Omar and Emily..."Um, Mom, can I please have some milk and cookies? WAAAAAA!" (That's for you, Swany. Omar, I know you're laughing right now!).
- The month Tia and I spent in the basement of the library studying for boards. We made some great friends during that time-"Jake," "Chris," and Gwen. We laughed every day.
- The adoption of my very lovable, but very expensive cat, Twigs.
- "Date night," which consisted of Tia and I going to eat Thai food and seeing a movie...every Friday.
- Laughing so hard most days that I would have tears streaming down my face..."guys, you know I cry when I laugh!"

Mom, Dad, and John:

Thanks for supporting me emotionally and financially. I couldn't have gotten through these last 4 years without you! I love you guys!

To my friends:

Thank you for allowing me to be myself and always laughing with me. I have made some of my closest friends and some of my fondest memories here. Medicine is such an interesting road to travel and I am happy to have shared that with you all. Good luck with everything!

Subject: YOU MADE IT!

We would like to add our congratulations to those many others you have received. It has truly been our pleasure in getting to know and work with each of you during your time with us.

Can you believe how fast that time has gone? Do you remember cramming into room 150 that first day of Orientation and being forced to talk to one another? How about your first exam in MCBG? Do you recall your first day of Structure in the Anatomy Lab, or with that special Standardized Patient in the Clinical Skills area? Or that day you thought would never come, that first day on the floors? What about those interviews that just now seem to have ended? And finally, Graduation, a day that at times looked so far away, is now upon us and most of you will be going to points all over the country.

While you will be missed, know too that we could not be more proud of you. You take with you a confidence, assuredness and training that will serve you well in your years as a physician. We know you will be successful and that you will stand tall in your medical profession. We also believe that you will represent us well, and further strengthen the name and reputation of Loyola University Chicago, Stritch School of Medicine wherever your goals may lead you.

Finally, welcome to our family of alumni. We hope that you will stay in touch during your residency. Remember our interest in you doesn't end at graduation. We also hope to see you at a reunion or two, and maybe even as a future member of our faculty!

Remember to stop by whenever you are in the neighborhood because no matter how far you travel, and no matter how long you are gone, this will always be your "home."

Until we meet again, congratulations and good luck to all of you.
